Are you a Field Service Engineer looking to work for a growing bespoke machinery and equipment supplier in a field-based position with rare stays away and excellent technical training for you to become a go-to specialist working on electro-mechanical machinery with the view to become a lead engineer?

This is an excellent opportunity for an engineer who has basic electrical knowledge looking for further technical training from shadowing lead engineers and being sent to head office to be given bespoke training from their in-house ex-engineer trainer where you will work on maintenance, installation, and commissioning of their bespoke equipment.

This company has 100 staff and 25 engineers, they have been established for over 5 decades and have a workforce of long-standing members because they value and look after their staff, they are known for their quality focussed service.

This role will suit a Field Service Engineer looking for a field-based role with lots of technical training and a great company who values their engineers

The Role:

- *Service, Maintenance of Mechanical engineering systems such as Hydraulics
- *Covering the South East with occasional stays away
- *Training at the Manufacturer's facility with ongoing technical support

The Person:

- *Mechanical Engineering experience, ideally knowledge of Hydraulics
- *Holds a Full UK Driving License
- *Looking for further technical training and career progression opportunities
