Job Description

I am working on an exciting new role for a Planning Lawyer to work in-house for an energy company who operates in the renewable energy space. My client is a fast moving, and dynamic company with strong UK growth plans. The role will suit a lawyer who is looking to transfer their private practice skills to the in-house arena. There will be the opportunity to build on knowledge in other sectors and the incoming lawyer will play a strategic part in the firm's UK expansion plans. The incoming lawyer will be working with a Chief Legal Officer with many years-experience in both private practice and in-house. There will be the opportunity to work remotely so this role is open to candidates around the UK. It is likely it will suit a lawyer with a minimum of 5 years' experience with an infrastructure background although there is no upper limit on the role. For a confidential conversation about this role please contact Stuart Phillips.
