Company: Leaders in Care

Location: United Kingdom

Category: other-general

Looking to step away from Court cases and Section 47's? Well, a South Wales local authority has just opened spots for you and your colleague to work as a Fostering Social workers doing Kinship assessments.

You can work from home 2-3 days a week with hybrid working. If you do decide to come into the office, you will have access to the free parking provided by the council saving you much more on a rainy day. If working from home matches your style and improves your focus, then you may well want to consider this role ...

Are you looking to spend more time in the week with your family? Then you can at peace of mind when you condense work to get yourself down to a 4-day work week, leaving you with more free time to spend with loved ones.

The general atmosphere is quite relaxed, and you can manage your diary and keep your appointments as you see fit. No micro-managing and more professional freedom. You have worked hard to get to the level you are at and the team is appreciative of that fact, so you will find that your professional opinion is valued

If this role interests you, please get in contact with Leo, send your CV , or call on

If the role is not for you, but perhaps a friend or colleague looking for a change, we are offering market leading referral fee of £ per placement – all you have to do is reach out!

As this is a statutory role, you do require a social work qualification & registration to Social Work Wales.
