Category: other-general

4basebio is an innovative gene synthesis company with the ambition to provide high quality, synthetic DNA for use in gene therapy and gene editing platforms. The company is growing rapidly and is establishing a GMP gene synthesis hub at its site just north of Cambridge, UK to facilitate the scaling and optimisation of a proprietary DNA manufacturing process. As a QC Technician you will help 4basebio to maintain the critical equipment, systems and facilities essential for compliance with current Good Manufacturing Practices (cGMP). The role is varied, requiring interaction with multiple teams, in an energetic and dynamic environment. As a result, flexibility, diligence and teamwork skills are essential.

Responsibilities: Monitor the calibration and maintenance schedules, ensuring all systems are always in excellent working order. Perform equipment calibrations and facility monitoring tasks according to approved procedures. Complete and maintain records in line with Good Documentation Practices and maintaining data integrity. Support issue investigations and corrective action plans in case of equipment failures. Ensure compliance with Quality policies, SOPs and Health and Safety procedures. Advocate the importance of Quality and compliance and foster healthy collaborations with the Production and Quality Control Teams. Undertake any other appropriate roles and responsibilities that reasonably fall within the role holder's skills and experience as requested.

Person Specification: Education to degree level is desirable, but more important is sufficient relevant experience. Experience working in laboratory environments is essential. Experience of working in cleanrooms and/or manufacturing environments is desirable. An understanding of Quality Control or concepts of Good Manufacturing Practices (GMP). Scrupulous attention to detail. Comfortable working
