Principal DevSecOps EngineerWeb3 Start-up - Digital WalletUnited Kingdom - Fully remoteSalary - £110k-£170k (flexible)This is a great opportunity to join a well funded Web3 start-up looking at creating the next generation of user friendly wallet for customers and wallet as a service for enterprises.The focus is on ease of use, safety and security for web3 users and the wallet will be tailored for streamlined interactions for RWAs, dePIN, and Identity with compliance built in.They were founded in 2022 but are well backed by some major players within the Web3 space and this is their latest venture.They have a fully remote and globally distributed team of 12 people however security is currently managed externally by one of their partners.With that in mind they're looking to build a new team with a DevSecOps Engineer at the heart of it, helping to integrate security at all stages of their product lifecycle.They have around 5000 users and ran a super successful beta so this is an opportunity to join at an early stage and take ownership, putting measures in place for them to be able to scale securely long term.You should have good experience working in the Web3 space and be ready to apply that to an early stage product.If this sounds like a good fit then please apply now and we'll get in touch!
