SENIOR BALLASTLESS TRACK ALIGNMENT ENGINEER - LONDON or BIRMINGHAM
- PERMANENT - £47,450 - £80,760

ARM are working with a large railway organisation and we are currently recruiting for a Senior Ballastless Track Alignment Engineer for a permanent position that could be based in either Birmingham or London.

About You:

You will be an experienced Railway Engineer, who has some experience of alignment on railway track and calculations needed for curvatures on tracks. You will have experience of using Bentley design systems. Your railway career could include permanent way (p-way), DPE or similar track design engineer roles.

What you will be doing:

This position will be working on a brand-new railway system that is being build with Slab Track / Ballastless track and needs careful engineered alignment. Your role will be working with contractors delivering the project, ensuring engineering designs and principals will ensure delivery is as needed for a successful delivery.

This position can be located in either Birmingham or London (depending on your preference) and is working using the hybrid model (2 days in the office and 3 days from home each week).

What you can expect in return:

The salary range for this position is between £47,450 and £80,760 (Birmingham is max of £71,160). On top of this is an excellent range of benefits and a real chance of progression, as well as working on interesting engineering challenges involved.

We can only consider applications from those eligible to work in the UK on a permanent basis for this position.

For more information on this position, please contact Wayne Smith at ARM on (phone number removed) or email your CV and covering letter .
