Job description

As Senior Health Economist, you will join the department of HEMA (Health Economics & Market Access -<https://www.amaris.com/business-line/life-sciences/>). Interesting information about HEMA: We are a dynamic and expert team of more than 80 collaborators, located in 8 countries (Canada, the U.S.A, Spain, France, the U.K., China, Bulgaria, and Tunisia), gathering more than 15 different nationalities, our main activities are Health Economics, Evidence Value and Access, and Biostatistics.

Let us show you what you could do with us, and how you can impact the world being a HEMA consultant:

What will you do?

- Design or supervise the design of optimal project solutions to address client needs within the Global HEOR & European HTA process.

- Organize, supervise, and support project teams to ensure high-quality work, as well as efficient and timely completion of projects

- Provide strategic advice within the context of projects (within and beyond project scope)

- Share knowledge and understanding of European (UK, France mostly) public and private HTA processes, drug review processes, and reimbursement trends affecting market access

Develop technical reports and presentations to disseminate findings.

Develop and manage project stakeholder relations and communications (internal and external)

Monitor resource, budget, and delivery metrics.

Collaborate closely with the business development and delivery management teams.

What will make you the best HEMA candidate?
