Sustainability Lead Would you like to work for an organisation at the heart of decarbonisation and play an integral role in accomplishing this? Do you want to be a part of a sustainability minded FTSE250 business who provide a great level of support from a sustainability function? Are you passionate about contributing to ambitious sustainability targets including Biodiversity Net Positive Impact (NPI) and SBTi? If so, look no further... A unique and distinguished position has arisen for an established sustainability professional to lead sustainability at South Western Railway, a train operating company with over 5,500 employees that is owned by First Group, a FTSE 250 £4.5Bn turnover business. Reporting into the Head of Corporate Affairs this will be a critical member of the public affairs, communications and community team, allowing for cross functional translation and adoption of sustainability strategy. Why the Sustainability Lead position is something you should apply for: This is an opportunity to join a company that is integral to decarbonisation and promoting sustainable travel. You will work within an organisation which sits between the public and private sectors, giving a unique perspective to sustainable development. With collaboration within the wider First Group sustainability network, the successful individual will be part of a community to engage with like minded peers around best practice, whilst having the opportunity to deliver this operationally within SWR. South Western Railway hold a people-focused approach at the core of their values, with learning and development opportunities available. The successful Sustainability Lead will have: A proven track record of team leadership of a sustainability function with a high-level of both gravitas and credibility. The ability to build relationships cross-functionally and be comfortable talking and engaging at all levels within a matrix.
