Company: Skills Provision

Location: United Kingdom

Category: architecture-and-engineering

We have an immediate opportunity for a candidate with significant laboratory experience and good organisational skills to join a company that is a world-leading provider of high-quality microbiology products to clinical, industrial, research, and academic laboratories.

Based at their facility in the United Kingdom as Technical Process Development Scientist you will undertake technical investigations arising from customer complaints and queries, relating to the production of Bacteriology reagents. This may include reformulating products, new product development, stability testing, validation and generation of Production documentation.

Position: Technical Process Development Scientist

Salary & Benefits

£73,000 per annum

Extensive Benefits package available

The Role

Organising and conducting investigations into processes, reagents or products

Generating reports, including stability reports to support changes to production documentation

Completing production documentation in line with required quality standards

Raising non-conformance reports when required

Following all applicable SOPs, safety rules and GMP

Completing product and process training modules in a timely manner

Participating in training programmes as required

Raising change notes as appropriate

Calibration of equipment

Requirements

To be considered for this role you will be degree educated in Biochemistry, Microbiology or a similar discipline and have considerable laboratory experience and a demonstrable record of using microbiological techniques and ELISA.

If you are familiar with latex agglutination that would be a distinct advantage.

In addition, you will have experience of investigating product issues, reformulation and validation. Good organisational skills are essential.
