UX Designer/Manager

Remote

Our well known health and wellbeing client is currently going through an exciting digital transformation and looking to recruit their first UX Manager paying £48,000 to £57,000 with one day in the office and the other four days working from home.

You will be the voice of user experience within a digital squad. Collaborate with the digital product owner to understand the user stories and then design great digital experiences that deliver the required outcomes. You will create high quality digital UX and design artefacts that are ready for developers to start work on. Conduct research with user groups to ratify design assumptions. Think Omnichannel and collaborate effectively with our operational teams to ensure that our digital customer journeys complement our physical customer journeys.

To be considered you will show demonstrable knowledge, skills and experience in the field of User experience and digital design. You will have exceptional technical skills allowing the creation of high-quality clickable prototypes, wireframes and digital designs aswell as experience in UX research
